

When God Arises in This Earth

Song 4 When God arises on this earth

Psalm 68 – God arises, enemies scatter like smoke, melt like wax before fire. He is Father to orphans, defender of widows, gives home to lonely, leads captives to freedom. Righteous rejoice. Echoes Exodus 15:1–21 (God's victory over enemies) and Isaiah 61:1 (liberty to captives).

When God arises on this earth
His enemies scatter far and wide
Those who hate Him flee in fright
Like smoke blown away, dispersed they ride

When God arises on this earth
His enemies scatter far and wide
Those who hate Him flee in fright
Like smoke blown away, dispersed they ride

Drive them, drive them, drive them out, O God
All foes You scatter, drive them out, O God
Drive them, drive them, drive them out, O God
All enemies You chase away, O God

Like wax before the fire melts away
So the wicked perish before His face today
Father to the fatherless He stands
Defender of the widow, justice in His hands

Like wax before the fire melts away

So the wicked perish before His face today
Father to the fatherless He stands
Defender of the widow, justice in His hands

Act, act, act, O God
Justice for the poor and widow, act, O God
Act, act, act, O God
Justice for the poor and widow, act, O God

To the lonely, homes He gives
To the bound, freedom He brings
Rebels dwell in parched land
Righteous rejoice before His hand

To the lonely, homes He gives
To the bound, freedom He brings
Rebels dwell in parched land
Righteous rejoice before His hand

Give, give, give, O God
Homes and freedom, give, O God
Give, give, give, O God
Homes and freedom, give, O God

When God Arises
in This Earth
